

I Don't Care Where You've Been Sleeping

Don Francisco

I loved you long before the time your eyes first saw the day
And everything I have done has been to help you on the way
But you took all that you wanted and at last you took your leave
Traded off a kingdom for the lies that you've believed

And although you've chosen darkness with its miseries and fears
Although you've gone so far from Me, wasted all these years
Even though my name's being spattered by the mire in which you lie
I'd take you back this instant if you'd turn to me and cry

I don't care where you've been sleeping
I don't care whose made your bed
I already gave my life to set you free
There's no sin you could imagine
That is stronger than My love
And it's all yours if you'll come home again to Me

When you've come back to your senses, and you see who's been to blame
Remember all the good things that were yours with just My name
And don't waste another thought before you change the way you're bound
I'll be running out to meet if you'll only turn around (turn around)

I don't care where you've been sleeping
I don't care whose made your bed
I already gave my life to set you free
There's no sin you could imagine
That is stronger than my love
And it's all yours if you'll come home again to me

I don't care where you've been sleeping
I don't care whose made your bed
I already gave my life to set you free
There's no sin you could imagine
That is stronger than my love
And it's all yours if you'll come home again to me
