Losing

Ramin Karimloo

There are times when I fall through
I can't feel the love in you
I know that I'm pushing you
Away from the man you knewIt's not always black or white
The grey obscures and blocks the light
So why not paint me red tonight
But I've gone to feel what's rightAnd there you are, you're losing you and me
And there you are, I'm losing you from me
And there you are, we're losing you and meLet's call a truce on this silent war
We both lost an empty drawer
The words we use lie on the floor
Broken souls we must ignoreAnd there you were, you're losing you and me
And there you were, I'm losing you from me
And there you were, we're losing you and meHow can I assure that this was not who I wanted to be Let go of the hurt inside and figure out why you love meWhy you love me (why you love me)
Why you love me (why you love me)It's so clear when looking back
Far too young to see the crack
To keep our box car on the track
Please stand by me while I packNo this is not a simple choice
There's nothing left now to rejoice
Johnny Cash and Jimmy Joyce
Speak for me, now use my voiceAnd there you were, you're losing you and me
And there you are, I'm losing you from me
And there there you are, are we losing you and me
