

The Ballad of a Mix Tape

Comet Gain

And as we read, the world written in red
Luminous language and what was said
Our future's terminal and anything good will do We will do it today and then throw it away And these are the records
These are the friends
These are the monuments
Dreams never end
Fans and scrappy cassette sounds
Pagan ampex spectral clouds
Something is missing
Something is missing Unwilling to bend our knees
But willing to burst into flame
In Washington state or Newcross Gate
Always remember the failures
Always remember and tell us when you do
Tell us when you do A stereo's as cheap as it takes
Our bookshelves full of mixtapes
Of punk and soul and damaged rock 'n roll
The Go-Betweens and Supremes
And the Chills and the Dills Something is missing
Something is missing
Remember the lost bands that never had a hope
Checks and Credits by Toulouse
It was scratchy, it was great
Unseen history of these bands
Like a building built on fertile land
But I own that fanzine and the 45s
And I promise not to let them die And in the skin of the world
We're like a heartbeat
Our rotten teeth like cobblestones
In the pathway of forgotten things
Haunted all our favorite bars
And nurtured hard our daydream scars Something is missing
Something is missing Change of river, running back to the sea
Detour this to the heart of the dream
Thank you, that guitar (?) to words
Amplify tears and rusty badges
Fingerprint photograph smudges Our mixtapes are memories for unseen histories
And mixtapes are memories for unseen histories

What means the most to you, it means the most to me
What means the most to you, it means so much to me And something is missing
Something is missing I put my tongue in my mouth
A bit of black tooth comes out
This happens monthly
Rotten footsteps to goodbye We found this out in the underground
And we felt so proud to be on the ground And something is missing
And something is missing
And something is missing
And something is gone
