Losing Myself

State Champs

I said I'll always remember the wood grain beneath my feet in a busy street
I never said I was angry, but I think I'm still in misery
But it's what I needed and you took me by surpriseSometimes I think I'm bound for losing it all
And I thinking I'm weighing
I think I'm weighing us down
But no, I won't fall, and I wouldn't trade it
I wouldn't trade it
I'm down for lifeAnother day I was selfish;
It reminds me of my wasted youth and all the one's and two's
I try to live in the moment;
It reminds me of the time we spent trapped in your apartment
We attract what we're ready for
It's something I can't ignoreSometimes I think I'm bound for losing it all
And I thinking I'm weighing
I think I'm weighing us down
But no, I won't fall, and I wouldn't trade it
I wouldn't trade it nowMaybe some promises were broken; wasn't holding tight
But now I wanna know what it feels like
Sometimes I think I'm bound for losing it all
But I wouldn't trade it
I wouldn't trade it
I'm down for lifeCall it off, I've made my move
I'm defenseless and I could use some time on my own and a place to say
I'm losing myself in the best way
Done with anything basic
I've had enough of the same shitTell me why
We attract what we're ready for
It's something I can't ignoreSometimes I think I'm bound for losing it all
And I thinking I'm weighing
I think I'm weighing us down
But no, I won't fall, and I wouldn't trade it
I wouldn't trade it nowMaybe some promises we're broken; wasn't holding tight
But now I wanna know what it feels like
Sometimes I think I'm bound for losing it all
But I wouldn't trade it - I wouldn't trade it
I'm down for life
