Oxygen Mask

Eisley

You're a ray, red ray
You're a sun-bleeding ray
But now you're turning gray
Don't tell me what you think, I've been meaning to say, okay
Rainbows and setting suns
They are coming to the darkness when we were one
Oh, I can't believe it's happened to me
Oh, I can't believe it's happening to you
You're a vision of truth and that's what I love
Give me one more chance
You've got me breathing through an oxygen mask
Give me one more chance
Oh, you remember me?
Doubled over from the flow, we start to breathe
And all the poetry convinces me
You were stolen from the waves at sea
But now we are crumbling
And I'll never get the chance to say what it means
To have you, my love, depend on me
To love all those things you tried for me
You're a vision of truth and that's what I love
Give me one more chance
You've got me breathing through an oxygen mask
Give me one more chance, ah yeah
Why do you lie?
'Cause you're a vision of truth and that's what I love
Give me one more chance
Got me breathing through an oxygen mask
Give me one more chance
You're a vision of truth and that's what I love
Give me one more chance
You've got me breathing through an oxygen mask
Give me one more chance
You're a ray, red ray
You're a sun-bleeding ray
But now you're turning gray
Don't tell me what you think I needed to say
