

Drift Apart

Ben Caplan

When I wrote you that letter, you'd already made up your mind
All my words were written in vain
When I called you up that day, I was only calling up to say hello
But goodbye, was the word that you've been thinking bout for days
I didn't know that you were going to leave me,
I wish I knew the way to make you come home
What can I do if this is right for you
I have not been perfect for you,
Although I think I was back at the start
You have no more patience for me
So now I guess we're both just drift apart
All those times I wasn't there,
The times you thought it didn't care
I hope you can believe I thought of you cause you were everything I needed
I've been selfish and so self-absorbed
I thought that you'll be waiting when I reached the other side
Last night I put my arms around another woman's waist
The touch was sweet but bitter while we danced
And great love can bring greater pain
I hope I fall in love again
What can I do, if this is right for you
I have not been perfect for you,
I like to think I was back at the start
You have no more patience for me
So now I guess we're both just drift apart
I want the best for you and now I realize that isn't me
I haven't been the man you need, I wish I'd been able to be I'm sorry that I did not give you everything that you desired
And that I've made you feel upset when you just made me feel inspired
I have not been perfect for you,
I wish we could go back and just restart
You have no more patience for me
So now I guess we're both just drift apart
Drift apart
