

Comes Crashing

Dogwood

It's picking time, time for me to leave
And walk away from us
My feet are tired, too tired to carry both of us
Through this again On into nothing
Out in the open
I say goodbye in faith
I'll wait Surrender your pain, lay down your love
When I come back and it all comes crashing down
The end of your world is closer than you think My shattered heart is stained with memories
Of how was life to be
When giving hurt, the sacrifices made
Were not enough for me I'm coming back, to rectify
All the pain, I caused you
Don't shield your eyes
Face tomorrow on your own Failure to reason
Endless confusion
The unanswered question
Is why you're on my mind? Surrender your pain, lay down your love
When I come back and it all comes crashing down
The end of your world is closer than you think Incomplete without want
Want is what I know that I can't have Left alone to argue
The only argument that I can win Yesterday has past you
That day that we thought we had
Incomplete without you
I want you to know Surrender your pain, lay down your love
When I come back and it all comes crashing down
The end of your world is closer than you think The end of your world is closer than you think
Closer than you, closer than you think

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>