The Great Unknown

Rob Thomas

People are talking what you can't unknow and what you wanted wasn't real at all So many people never cross that road Staring out the window of a combat zoneChorus-So just hold on driving through the valley of the great unknown Hoping that the headlights shine you home everyone around you has a heart of stone but you just hold on you just hold onPeople are talking but you can't be sure So many whispers at your own front door and when you open up you lose that hope now you start to wonder if you're all aloneSo just hold on driving through the valley of the great unknown
Hoping that the headlights shine you home
but you just hold onRemember walking when you thought you couldn't stand Remember what it feels like I know you think that they could never understand oh, but you don't want to be right and now you only want to make it out aliveSo just hold on driving through the valley of the great unknown Hoping that the headlights shine you home
