The Answer

Automatic Loveletter

From ocean to sky, summer and fall, I have been there though it all
From laughing and crying to pain that comes easy
From shades of gray meaning that turn out so sweetly
I wonder when, I wonder what I'll find
I look up to the sun, it only hurts my eyes
Maybe it's the answer, I've been wanting in disguise
The more you are with me, the more that I'm alone
I don't need the answer I already know
Subtle and grace, desperate for change
My hand moves away, melt dry eyes for days
Something's not right, smiles and tantrums
Hit the ground running, it's all over and been done
I wonder when, I wonder I'll find
I look up to the sun, it only hurts my eyes
Maybe it's the answer, I've been wanting in disguise
The more you are with me, the more that I'm alone
I don't need the answer I already know
What happens next?
We'll stop and go
The promises has already run cold
So now you know, so now you know
I look up to the sun, it only hurts my eyes
Maybe it's the answer, I've been wanting in disguise
The more you are with me, the more that I'm alone
I don't need the answer, the answer
I look up to the sun, it only hurts my eyes
Maybe it's the answer, I've been wanting in disguise
The more you are with me, the more that I'm alone
I don't need the answer I already know
