

1995

Molly Nilsson

Windows 95

You're long gone but I'm still alive

I've gone so far, not even knowing how

I suppose the world is so much smaller now
The plans that you made

When you still had the time

I've saved all the things

That you left behind
But by now I guess I'd consider them all mine
Windows 95

Is only a metaphor for what I feel inside

Although I'm older now

There's still an emptiness that's never letting go somehow
Have you ever walked into what seemed, to be somebody else's dream?

And though the time won't let you pass, it keeps you looking through the glass

Looking through the glass
1995

They call the year the future was to arrive

But back in '95

We thought we were standing on the threshold to the end of time

(And we still do)
So what's wrong with living in the past?

It just happens to be the place I saw you last

And what's wrong with living in a dream?

That one day the echo answers, deep inside of me
I'll remember 1995

I'll remember 1995

I'll remember 1995

I'll remember 1995

1995
