

Luckiest of Suckers

Five Times August

(Verse 1)

So what you've been doing to me has got to be the greatest unknown. And what you've been trying to keep, I bet you didn't need to let go. Now it's obvious that my loneliness is irremediable, but I can't let it show. I'm writing you letters, making things better, but you'll never be the same to me.

(Chorus)

Baby, you've changed me for good, it's understood you don't want me hangin'. Maybe I'm hangin' on love, and love alone has got me chasin' the shorter skirts, the bigger flirts, the ones that won't hurt me like you. And I do... feel like the luckiest of suckers to lose.

(Verse 2)

So what you've been sayin' to me so plainly is so painfully erasin' away. Everyday is the same, it's a game, it's a shame but don't blame me, cause you came to me. (Repeat Chorus)

But don't blame it all (on the) same old songs. I see so clear, my dear there's only one thing missin'. But don't expect to get it from me. Everyday is the same, it's a game, it's a shame, but don't blame me, cause you came to me

(repeat chorus)

Yeah I do, Yeah I do... feel like the luckiest of suckers to lose.
