

The Ones You Love

Rick Astley

Children cry on the street
They don't have enough to eat
Mothers wait for days on end
A hopeless situation they can't mend Is it good for you? Is it good for me?
I don't know how the world can sleep
It's just not right
To close the door turn out the light They'd better be the ones you love
The children ought to get some love
If no one else should ever get enough
They'd better be the ones you love Daddy waits there in line
A little work he hopes to find Something wrong with times like these
It's enough to bring a man down to his knees Is it good for you? Is it good for me?
Well I don't know how the world can sleep
It can't be right
To close the door turn out the light They'd better be the ones you love
The children ought to get some love
If no one else should ever get enough
They'd better be the ones you love They'd better be the ones you love
The children ought to get some love
If no one else should ever get enough
They'd better be the ones you love Thinking of, thinking of the children
The children deserve some love
Thinking of, you better be think about the children
The children deserve our love Better be, you better be, thinking of
They better be the ones you love
Better be, you better be, thinking of Better be the ones you love, yeah yeah yeah Is it good for you? Is it good for me?
I don't know how the world can sleep
It's just not right
To close the door turn out the light They'd better be the ones you love
The children ought to get some love
If no one else should ever get enough
They'd better be the ones you love They'd better be the ones you love
The children ought to get some love
If no one else should ever get enough
They'd better be the ones you love They'd better be the ones you love
The children ought to get some love
If no one else should ever get enough

They'd better be the ones you love They'd better be the ones you love
The children ought to get some love

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnllyrics.com/>