Entwining Trees

Ashley Maher

a god in disguise knocked at the door of two lovers long beyond the war they offered him all and he wished them only good and he turned them into entwining trees within the wood yes, he turned them into

so wise is the weaver of two lives together when they weather
the weather together whatever the weather

the prize is the laughter among the youngest leaves when he turns them into
yes, he turns them into

I want to hear that absolutely doubtless voice
in my head
shout when the sunset
is heavy with red
when homeless is love
hopeless lies ahead
â€œhear me,
remember the positive way
the sunâ€™s sleepy now
but sheâ€™ll come another day.â€• inside sings the echo of songs that made you grow they rise with the sun and they sweat with the seeds you sow

I slide in beside you hopingâ€¦ hoping that heâ€™ll turn us into
yes heâ€™ll turn us into

I want to fall in love with you, slow both overnight,
and along the long road like entwining trees
