Down On The Lower East Side

Justin Townes Earle

Well the midnight's on Manhattan 11th street and all alone Countin' cracks beneath my feat 'cause my head is hanging low and the street lights all down b shining on the falling rain shadows dance across the street wind seems to whisper her name but in this tired old town another sleepless night keep me wandering around down on the lower east side

So lay a star up in heaven shining down from up above and the city is unforgiving when you got nobody to love but its more and more these days i find i need a place to hide and its easy to get away when your down on the lower east side yeah its easy to get away when your down on the lower east side
