The Greatest Deception

And Hell Followed With

I am not easily fooled. I see no difference between you and all the others, aside from you being the alpha male of just a different pack of wolves. You said that this conflict would end with you, yet since you've come to be, I've seen more of my friends and family sent to war. Our economy has worsened, yet government spending keeps increasing. How can a capitalist nation punish small business with higher taxes, and like cattle, drive their business to the companies in your pockets? Your posters line the streets like something's changed since you've taken office, yet we've seen no difference. This country was founded on the escapism of trusting one man, yet now I see entire familes hang your portrait above their dinner table. You swore you would better all our lives and children's. Still half the middles class's earning go to the Federal Reserve. The world has seen idle worship like this before, in Nazi-occupied Europe in the 30s. This is cultism at it's finest, a wave of nations putting all their faith into your hands. You lying bastard. Those many suffering supported you simply to end this war. Your charismatic features on TV screens smiling softly and speaking of hope and change, held above their heads like a promise to bring back their dead children.

Lyrics provided by
https://damnlyrics.com/