

Capeside Rock

From Autumn To Ashes

The sound of my breath flutters past your ear tearing down fear
Grasp your heart strings by their frayed ends
To choke down the feeling left inside
The sands of time slide down your cheek
In the form of liquefied dreams
Each one stands for more than the next You give yourself
To all but you
Take all you had
And give what's left
How could you have been so blind? The shallow waters that you come upon Show you how empty your life truly is
You look into the vast
Nothingness to see
Something that is not there You try to discern where to go from here
You try to make sense of this confusion
You have inside and how you can get there This van is on a one way trip
We'll rock it straight to hell
Our Crue is Motley and
Our theaters filled with pain, pain Across the creek
(Across the creek)
And into your home
(Your home)
'Cause she don't want you
(she don't want you)
Any other way But by a force unknown deep inside you
Your veins tied in knots
Bind your blistering hands
To keep you in this world forsaken
As you leave your wilting soul behind

Songwriters

Brian Deneve; Jonathan Cox; Joshua Newton; Francis Mark; Benjamin Perri Published by SRIRACHA MUSIC Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>