Pump Up the Volume

M\A\R\R\S/(r)

We've taken our clothes off in the rewarder
And you're leavin' your shoes on to make you look taller
And I can't say I'm not enjoying the kissing
But I've a sneaking suspicion that you're not really listeningI know I shouldn't, is it so wrong
To break from your kiss to turn up a pop song?
I know I shouldn't and it's possibly wrong
To break from your kiss to turn up a pop songI'm takin it slowly, I've been readin the signs
I found my hand in a place where I can't tell if she minds
Rolling around amongst our clothes on the floor
I can't help it, have you heard this song before?I know I shouldn't, is it so wrong
To break from your kiss to turn up a pop song?
I know I shouldn't and it's possibly wrong
To break from your kiss to turn up a pop songThen something angry muttered
Between two people, red and flustered
We just kissed and that's about it
It may as well have been radio staticI know I shouldn't, is it so wrong
To break from your kiss to turn up a pop song?
I know I shouldn't and it's possibly wrong
To break from your kiss to turn up a pop song

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/