

I Can Sing About Heaven

A Few Good Men Music Ministries

There's a promised land untouched by man
Prepared for the saved and the blessed
A city built four square far away somewhere
As a home for the saints to rest
So many have tried but they couldn't describe
All the beauties on that bright shore
For it's never entered in to the hearts of men

What the Father has in store I could sing about Heaven for a million years and never get the story told
Of the jasper walls and the gates of pearl and the streets made of pure gold
Even John the Revelator in a heavenly vision could never really say what he saw
I could sing about heaven for a million years and still I could never tell it all
From the throne there springs a glimmering stream of waters pure and sweet
And it flows by the tree of life on its way to the crystal sea
And the precious stones that the walls rest on are of twelve different kind
And the night will cease for the Prince of Peace is the light that forever shines
