

Aphelion

Crossley Hunter

It wasn't how we met
It wasn't who we were
It wasn't my last mistakes
It wasn't what I stole
A tongue under distress was teased and taunted from watching you undress
The mistake was flawlessIt's all in how we met
It wasn't what I wanted
Bound to regret in my throat and stomach
You can see it in my breath, it was the cold that brought it
It was the onset of all I never asked for, I never sought outTie me upside down until my world starts glowing red and your certain I've been looking at you through eyes of the dead
Cause you put your faith in love, and I tried to prove you right
But honey these intentions in my head, they won't see daylightIt's not enough to say what's wrong
