American Outcast

Ghost Town

Now we're constantly walking the line between wasted dreams
All I need is a place where I fit with these thoughts of mine
I can't help but think, "Why I even try"
When this journey of mine, It just breaks me downI feel you, always watching me, judging me
This scaffold on my shoulder, I'll deal with when I'm older
Don't waste your apologies, honestly
So if I'm going down, until I lose my fucking mind, let's sing it!There's no means to an end when we always start again
Why is this so pretend, now we're all just losing friends (losing friends)
I can't sleep, put to sleep
Now we're bleeding out
I'll admit that I need you now
'Cause you'll build me upI need a quick fix, psychologically
Oh I'm a sucker to the American Dream
When I die young, you'll spread your legacy
I'm gonna kick back, sit back, never gonna look backNever gonna look back (look back)
Never gonna look back (look back)
Never gonna look back (look back)
Never gonna look back!I feel you, always watching me, judging me
This scaffold on my shoulder, I'll deal with when I'm older
Don't waste your apologies, honestly
So if I'm going down, until I lose my fucking mind, let's sing it!In this world I wanna elevate
I wanna find my fate
My destiny
Only mean it, and I need you now,
Slowly find myself in a messed up wayKiss up, wake my soul
Sing me lullabies
Close my eyes when you
Send me off to die
Run away, what you, sick enough for state
You turned your back on
I can't save this placeI feel you, always watching me, judging me
This scaffold on my shoulder, I'll deal with when I'm older
Don't waste your apologies, honestly
So if I'm going down, until I lose my fucking mind, let's sing it!In this world I wanna elevate
I wanna find my fate
My destiny
Only mean it, and I need you now,
Slowly find myself in a messed up way
