

Smitten For the Mitten

Chiodos

just me and you
with the world in our hands
so say what you want, im really not who you think i am i keep the words that make me sane im not who you thought i would be and im so much better now that im far from you this passion drowns our need for love dont you ask me any questions (just come on and follow me) through the words and ocean through the sky and empty rooms (from the pit of my stomach) coming up trough my throat the drink that will fill you the need to keep you coming back for more

no we cant stop even if we wanted to

and this is all still so new to me our eyes have lost their color and now im trying, trying to keep my balance but theres nothing, theres nothing to keep me standing so ill hold myself up

no we cant stop even if we wnted to this passion drowns our need for love
