

Wish

Hurts

At the Piccadilly station I felt my heartbeat racing
And I didn't know, know better
And on the Campbell road I found a mirror for my soul
And I didn't need no other
I was accident pawn, I fell over heels with no warning
And inspite of my vertigo, I never felt myself falling
And I wish, I wish that I told you then what I realize now
And I wish, I wish that I told you when you were still alright
That night in white chapel, girl I know what should've happen
But I just left you standing there
Meanwhile, I became a man from the New York City to Japan
But that don't give me satisfaction, yeah
We're only victims of timing
And on that cold summer night I know I'm a fool for not trying And I wish, I wish that I told you then what I realize now
And I wish, I wish that I told you when you were still alright
I wish that I could rewrite all the things that we both let go
And I wish that I could just turn back the time and tell you oh-oh
I wish, I wish that I told you then what I realize now, and I wish I wish, I wish that I told you then what I realize now
And I wish, I wish that I told you when you were still alright

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>