Normalcy

Drist

For every breath I made a move,
And guessing all those times you fallHead spinning all around, I know just what you came for Life spinning us all around, we know just what to call painlessI tell myself, there's only you and I so close to feel this
I tell myself, there's only you and I supposed to knowThis is your life, I think I decided.Consider every time I used to want a normal life
And tearing vagrant signs of you and I with hopes to foldSeeing all the lights go on,
And knowing well I've gone to farJust sitting and burning holes in shapes of mild regard failing
Our boredom, it falls around and slung across the floor heavilyI tell myself, there's only you and I so close to feel this
I tell myself, there's only you and I supposed to knowThis is your life, I think I decidedConsider everytime I used to want a normal life
And tearing vagrant signs of you and I with hopes to foldBelieve that all this time we used to try so hard to hold
Consider every time I used to want a normal life.All walls we made up come tumbling down
A parent you need all through your lifeConsider everytime I used to want a normal life
And tearing vagrant signs of you and I with hopes to foldBelieve that all this time we used to try so hard to hold
Consider every time I used to want a normal life.
