

My Life Has Been a Song

Bee Gees

Sweet simple song of different lights and different shades
The sound of life erupts and fades and all the world must play along
My life has been a song Here as I sleep, the love I dream will gently creep
Inside my heart I softly keep the tune that plays too long
My life has been a song Every sound in my head, every word that I said is like a melody melody
That no little person like me could ever change
Every sound in the street, all the cold and the heat
Is like a symphony symphony
Which has never before been rearranged Sweet simple song of different lights and different shades
The sound of life erupts and fades and all the world must play along
My life has been a song Every sound in my head, every word that I said is like a melody melody
That no little person like me could ever change
Every sound in the street, all the cold and the heat
Is like a symphony symphony
Which has never before been rearranged Sweet simple song of different lights and different shades
The sound of life erupts and fades and all the world must play along
My life has been a song Every sound in my head, every word that I said is like a melody melody
That no little person like me could ever change
Every sound in the street, all the cold and the heat
Is like a symphony symphony
Which has never before been rearranged

Songwriters

GIBB, BARRY ALAN/GIBB, MAURICE ERNEST/GIBB, ROBIN HUGH Published by

Lyrics © Warner/Chappell Music, Inc., Universal Music Publishing Group Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>