

Ghost of a Memory

Satellites

The numbers match again
The morning spotlight shines through the window pane
And picks out the knots deep in the wood
On the piano where you were stood
And the lines and sounds
I never did understand
But I wish for more
One last encore
The ghost of a memory called home
Plays the piano alone
Singing a song no one knows
And he's asking us to sing along
I see your face again
We all get older
But you're frozen in the frame
The facts they can change
I am not sure
Which is a memory
And what's really there
And the air moves unlike the points that were proved
And the wounds heal
The scars have no feel
The ghost of a memory called home
Plays the piano alone
Singing a song no one knows
And he's asking us to sing along
The ghost of a memory called home
It's time for you to go
Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnllyrics.com/>