Already Home

Lacey Brown

The trouble with truth is it never lies
And the trouble with wrong's that it's never right
So I rest my head under Your light
The trouble with peace is it never fights
And the trouble with love's that it's always blind
I wanna walk to the edge of it tonight
And I fall down
I am on my knees 'cause You're everything I need
And I've made a mess of myself on my own
And now I am on my face and I'm calling out Your name
And I won't run away 'cause I'm already home
The trouble with tears is that they dry
And the trouble within's made me wanna cry
I've never felt so much like I'm alive
I wanna open my eyes and see Your face
If I have to wait a thousand days
I'll still be right here, right next to You
And I fall down
I am on my knees 'cause You're everything I need
And I've made a mess of myself on my own
And now I am on my face and I'm calling out Your name
And I won't run away 'cause I'm already home
And I won't run away, I won't run away
I won't run away 'cause I'm already home
And I know I haven't always been where You wanted me
Standin' here, arms out, broken down before You
I know I haven't always been where You wanted me
Standin' here, arms out, broken down
I am on my knees 'cause You're everything I need
And I've made a mess of myself on my own
And now I am on my face and I'm calling out Your name
And I won't runaway 'cause I'm already home
