

Mercy

Counting Crows

(Kurt Stevenson, Patrick Winningham, & Chris Boesel)

Originally recorded for the Georgia soundtrack

I got a feeling of unrighteousness bitter cold hollow bitterness down the road
I walk with loneliness mercy will follow me I'm told Beneath this skin there lies a heart of stone It's growing old so very far, from home but a heart of gold I may someday own? and mercy will follow me, I'm told mercy will you follow me
mercy will you follow me to the final breath at last I take

mercy will you follow me
mercy will you follow me Till the chain of this old world I finally break.

My sister sang songs so sweet and sad bout a man whos love I never had there's a train bound for Gilead
mercy will follow me I'm told
mercy will you follow me
mercy will you follow me till my final breath at last I take
mercy will you follow me
mercy will you follow me

Till the chains of this old world I finally break
Till the chains of this old world I finally break
Till the chains of this old world I finally break

Lyrics provided by <https://damnlyrics.com/>