

Lost Together

The Rembrandts

You always said to listen to your hear
Maybe you were warning me
All that I remember is your sirens call
And crashing on your beach I was in pursuit of sunken treasure
Drifting so far off my course
I should've seen the red sky, in the morning light
And followed my true north Somewhere we got lost together
And on this island found each other
In a million years if ever
I could never want another Be careful what you think you're wishing for
'Cause you know it might come true
And happily ever after is an ending
Only written for a fool by a fool Somewhere we got lost together
And on this island found each other
In a million years if ever
I could never want another Stranded on this shore
Always wanting more
Than I could ever give to you Somewhere we got lost together
And on this island found each other
In a million years if ever
I could never want another I could never want another
I could never want another
