Who's the One

Sweet Tee

When the colors all begin to fade
And the imitations turn to gray
When the Iron Man begins to rust
And the Holy Water turns to dustWhat would be your savior now
Dragon or machine?
Who will wear the crown of thorns
In Mother Nature's dream?And who's the one who claimed my liberty
Robbed my soul of freedom
And how long must I put up with the
Unholy sound of your gun
Tell me, brotherWhen believers start to lose the faith
And the naked army falls from grace
When all extremes return to one
See them melt into the setting sunThe bounty on the rebel's heart
Washed away the pride
Drove the voice a million miles
Across the great divideTell me, who's the one, who claimed my liberty
Robbed my soul of freedom?
And who's the one, who denied my eyes to see
Truth behind double tongue?
And who's the one who claimed my liberty
Robbed my soul of freedom
And how long must I put up with the
Unholy sound of your gun, yeahThe bounty on the rebel's heart
Washed away the pride
Drove the voice a million miles
Across the great divideTell me, who's the one, who claimed my liberty
Robbed my soul of freedom?
And who's the one, who denied my eyes to see
Truth behind double tongue?
And who's the one who claimed my liberty
Robbed my soul of freedom
And how long must I put up with the
Unholy sound of your gun
Tell me, brotherHow long?
How long?
How long?
