A Lake

Lawrence Arabia

A lake,
a still and ageless lake, a dark and depthless lake you made a splash
it was concentric as you'd expect it.A field, a yellow painted field, depicted in a dusty book the mind was weak, the body willing that fact was chilling.
I never knew me, my dear till I met you I thought I was cool.
It only took seven years
and then we were truly in love.
You led me dumb and blind through the obstacle course that I call my mind and when I reached the end, the certificate - it was you.A fire,n a red and raging fire, a sick satanic pyre, we danced around, victorious Vikings, invoking lightning.A force,
an invisible force,
the terrifying hordes
they don't believe that it is sinning when you are winning.
I never knew me, my dear
till I met you I thought I was cool.
It only took seven years
and then we were truly in love.
and when I reached the end, the certificate
it was you.
