How Does Your Heart Forget?

Ginuwine

When you've gotta let go of the one you've held so close
When you know it's time to turn and walk away
There's nothing left to say, you know it's for the best
Yeah, yeah, your mind knows it's over, yeah, yeah
How does your heart forget?
How does it ever find a way to ever get over it?
How do you leave behind the best days of your life?
It might take some tears, it might take some time
You know it's so wrong, yeah, to try to hold on, yeah
And you know there's nothing left to hold on to
And nothing you can do will bring it back again, no
Your mind knows it's over
But how does your heart forget?
How does it ever find a way to ever get over it?
How do you leave behind the best days of your life?
It might take some tears, it might take some time
You can think you won't remember the touch upon your skin
And when you're finally sure you're finally free
Then you see them on the street and you fall apart
'Cause how does your heart forget?
How does it ever find a way to ever get over it?
How do you leave behind the best days of your life?
It might take some tears, it might take some time
So how does your heart forget?
How does it ever find a way to ever get over it?
How do you leave behind the best days of your life?
It might take some tears, it might take some time
It might take some tears, it might take some time

Lyrics provided by
https://damnlyrics.com/