

Seasons Change

Marketa Irglova

Open your door, come on outside
It's raining, but still, that's no reason to hide
Put on your coat, we can still play
Or go for a walk, rain as it may,
'Cause if you love life, it will keep you warm,
In all weather, even rain and storm We learn that spring sends the winter away,
So when the summer comes 'round, we beg spring to stay, but
In all these years past, why didn't we learn?
That we'd be better of pleading with whomever make the earth turn,
'Cause seasons change, they go as quick as they came, and
Not grow at all, neither strong, nor tall
But if you ever want to play a game with me,
To run around the woods, and climb the tallest tree,
To make ourselves a couple kites, and see them fly,
We can reach out to a cloud and try and touch the sky
