

Everybody's Someone

Brian McFadden

And everyday begins the same
Get up, go out, come back gain
Same old, same oldA thousand faces pass you by
You never look into their eyes
You feel so ordinary, they feel so ordinaryHey, everybody's someone
No matter where you come from
There's light in every single star
You're more than who you think you areHey, everybody's someone
And when it's hard to hold on
Remember, you are not alone
This house is everybody's homeAnd everyday we seem to chase
The perfect smile, the perfect face
Same old, same old, same oldFor everyone who gets to shine
A million more are left behind
They feel so ordinary, you feel so ordinaryHey, everybody's someone
No matter where you come from
There's light in every single star
You're more than who you think you areHey, everybody's someone
And when it's hard to hold on
Remember you are not alone
This house is everybody's homeFrom a King to a common man
We're all part of a greater planOoh, there's light in every single star
You're more than who you think you areHey, everybody's someone
When it's hard to hold on
Remember you are not alone
This house is everybody's homeHey

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>