

Won't Look Down

Will Young

The radio plays a love song
And every word seems to speak the truth
I'm trying not to feel the pain
Pretend that I'm not listening I know I should keep busy
But filling time, it ain't that easy for me
I'm trying to mend a broken heart
Trying hard to figure out If you give your love
Give your love to someone
Can you get it back or is it just long, gone now?
'Cause what I need now is the strength to Walk away and remember who I am again
This has gotta get better, surely time is all I need to mend
When I'm constantly reminded of the love that we had found
I gotta keep my head up high, I won't look down I know it's part of a process
The fact that I, oh, can't sleep at night
With nothing but the candle light
Nobody to hold me tight And when I ask myself who was in the wrong
I know inside we both hurt each other the same, oh
Yeah, you do me wrong
It's why I got to hold on Walk away and remember who I am again
This is gonna better, surely time is all I need to mend
When I'm constantly reminded of the love that we had found
Gotta keep my head up high, I won't look down No, I won't look down at the shadows all below me
And I will walk the bright side of the street
And I'll keep my head up high
I know my heart will show me how Walk away and remember who I am again
This is gonna get better, surely time is all I need to mend
When I'm constantly reminded of the love that we had found
I gotta keep my head up high, give me the strength to Walk away and remember who I am again
(I won't look down)
This has gotta get better, surely time is all I need to mend
When I'm constantly reminded of the love that we had found
I gotta keep my head up high, I won't look down
