

Waltz

Roby Lakatos and His Ensemble

Fetch me a glass, let's fill it with fine romance
Pour slow the wine, then let your eyes kiss mine

 You, you with the charmin' eyes
 Lately I've found myself truly beguiled
 If this is a waltz, then I can't refuse
 To dance with a man like you
 She must be fine, she must be enchantingly kind
 And she must be fair, never reveal that she cares
 Then, then when you've got her heart
 Spin her around till she begs you to stop
 But this is a waltz and no lady refuses
 To dance with a man like you

And if she inquires the meaning of love
You'll silence her words with a glance
And if she desires to wonder and pause
 You'll charmingly ask her to dance
You promised me that you would forever be kind
And if meant to be, love would find comfort in time
 Now, now that you feel no more
 How could I follow you out to the floor?
 And now it's a waltz but I have to refuse
 To dance with a man like you
But this is your waltz and you'll find someone new
 To dance with a man
 To dance with a man like you
