One Second

Sarah Bettens

When something dies or comes to life
When water shines in yellow light
When something moves inside a tree
I wish you saw things just like meWhen I walk around, lost and found
And I feel my feet as they touch the ground
And I'm happy just to be right there
I wish that I could somehow share
The thing my stomach does when I think of usWhat if we had one second to be
Just like the other, what would we see?
What if you knew exactly what you are to me?Would you be terribly surprised?
To see who I am in my actual size
A second is short but more than enough
You would feel loved, you would feel lovedWhat you hear when music sings?
What makes you sad, what sadness brings?
Do you feel empty when you cry?
If I could only find out why you fear the things you fear
And make it disappearWhat if we had one second to be
Just like the other, what would we see?
What if you knew exactly what you are to me?Would you be terribly surprised
To see who I am in my actual size?
A second is short but more than enough
You would feel loved, you would feel lovedWhat if we had one second to be
Just like the other, what would we see?
What if you knew exactly what you are to me?Would you be terribly surprised
To see who I am in my actual size?
A second is short but more than enough
You would feel loved, you would feel lovedYou would feel loved, you would feel loved
You would feel loved, you would feel loved
