Yesterday Morning

Matt Wertz

Yesterday morning every part of her just shut down
Getting out of bed never felt so difficult before
Every step she took led to the wrong direction
And she never made it out her door
Yesterday morning Jamie yielded to all she hates
But if she despises it so much why did she give in Seems like this battle just can't be won
And she's stuck there alone again.
She said I'm so sick of this stumble, stumble that I've been calling a walk
And so I'm tired of the mumble, mumble that I've described as a talk
And now I guess its time I lose myself
To the one who found me here, who found me here

Yesterday morning every part of her just shut down and All that she knew or thought she knew flew out the door
Things she loves so easily forgotten
Now Jamie can't love no more
She said I'm so sick of this stumble, stumble that I've been calling a walk
And so I'm tired of the mumble, mumble that I've described as a talk
And now I guess its time I lose myself
To the one who found me here
Found me here, found me, found me here
