

The Only Eyes

The Honeycutters

If there were a better way to learn what I've learned so nobody had to pay and no one got hurt if there were an easier road that wasn't so crooked Honey, I hope you know I would have took it but these are the only eyes that I have for looking at you and they've seen some lonely nights with liars and lovers and fools but I kept them open, just hoping for someone to make them less blue and these are the eyes that followed the telephone wires to come home to you Now I want you to love me but I wanna say when and I wanna say how much I wanna know how it ends Cause I've grown so tired of watching the door and all of these lines they serve to remind I've been here before Now these are the only eyes that I have for looking at you and they may be lonely tonight but they're catching the light and they're telling the truth and I kept them open just hoping for someone to make them less blue these are the eyes that followed the telephone wires to come home to you
