

Back to the Barracks

Nataly Dawn

I shot you in the arm
It was intentional, or unintentional
My thoughts were unaware
This isnt our first wound,
Itll look smaller in the morning
When the light reveals
The bigger wounds still there
We get three good days
Then its back to the barracks
Yeah, its back to the barracks
Feeling anxious, feeling bad
We get three good days
Then its back to the barracks
Wondering if there could be better days ahead
Was it long ago we walked in fields of green
There were no mines between the places where we roamed
Now we just tiptoe as we both wait to cast the first stone
When those little god damn mines begin to blow
We get three good days
Then its back to the barracks
Yeah, its back to the barracks
Feeling anxious, feeling bad
We get three good days
Then its back to the barracks
Wondering if there could be better days ahead
You shot me in the arm,
I saw your face grow pale
And we both knew so well
That nothing had been won
Were trigger-worn and wary
And the only thing that scares me
Its the thought that one of us could die alone
We get three good days
Then its back to the barracks
Wondering if there could be better days
I know there will be better days
So heres to all those better days ahead.
