

Love N Regrets

Byron Bank

Verse 1: They say you never forget your first love, moments you can't shake up

Internal scars, you just can't wake up

The break-up is real and still you wait up

Hoping things will let up, the truth you gotta let go and face up

Got a wall built up because you don't want to love again

Relationships are hard, scared to let others in

Bitter sweet, see what is happening

It's easy to move on, but it's hard remembering

Cause I remember the days

I gave my heart to another but her love was just vague

Put it all upon the table and all she did was just ate

Say her friend was just friend but now they married this day

Crazy to say, but I gotta let it burn

Confessions of a love that's lost with no return

To whom this really may concern

It's one life to live, I guess you live and you learn Verse 2: When did my life become a love song, where do I start

Talking about the one that picked me apart

Had me crumbling and wondering she seemed so far

Played her role, I didn't feel like a star

Still I fell for her knowing I knew better, forget her

Ignoring the do betters, my fellas be yelling at me

Saying that that ain't me, home is where I'm happy

If I don't see it now, I'll be damned but hope she catch me

Stuck in my ways chasing a fairtales

Life in a carousel, knew the shit very well

Trip to New York, I'm regretting I did that

Right up in my face, she was flirting believe that

How real can it get man the eyes don't lie

Just a sucker like them cartoons guys, I'm letting it burn

To whom this really may concern

It's one life to live, I guess you live and you learn, word!

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>