Find Your Way Back Home

Kevin Skinner

It's been day's since you been gone*
The clock on the wall turns awful slow
Having you here seems to light up this place
I want you here with me, but they don't feel the same,
Hey don't you know, Hey don't you know
You'll find your way back homeYou're too young to understand why
You've always had to tell your Daddy goodbye
You'll never have to reach out your arms to me
Right here in my heart is where you'll always be
Hey don't you know, Hey don't you know
You'll Find your way back home
Find your way back home
They've tried to take a lot of good years from me
But in the end I know that they all will see
It don't matter how far, how far you've grown
They can't change what we carved in stone
Hey don't you know, Hey don't you know
You'll find your way back home
Find your way back home
C'mon and, find your way
Find your way
Find your way back home
Find your way back homeIt's been days since you been gone
