I Think You Should Know

Crossfade

One day I fell asleep and dreamt of something to keep Opened up my dying mind to see the things that I'd never find Something true and beautiful was waiting there for me
In a dream where I believed I'd find my way back home
I think you should know how it feels falling down and out alone when no one Cares
I think you should know how it feels when the world buries your soul and You're still alive
Don't ask what you can tell when I scratch myself to sleep
And don't try to wake me up when I fall down, I bleed
And even though there is more to say, I've tried to steal myself away
I've taken all I can, I can help myself!

I think you should know how it feels falling down and out alone when no one Cares
I think you should know how it feels when the world buries your soul and You're still alive
There must be someone out there who can hear me scream aloud
I know there must be someone who cares just enough to help me out
Tell me there is someone out there
I know you hear me now
I know there is someone who cares
So please just help me out!
Know you hear me now
I know there is someone who cares
So please just help me out!

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/