

Piece of Heaven

The Honeycutters

Once I had a love I took for granted thought that I could trade him for a song now he's gone and I'm alone I finally understand it, he's the one was leaving all along So I thank God for all his lesser angels here beside me in this bar tonight cause flannel shirts and blue jeans and the promises of strangers make for a less blinding shade of white once I had a little piece of heaven all I'm trying to do is get it back I've been saving up my pennies and counting my blessings who could ever blame me for that? I never thought that love was worth the fight now I'm pulling my punches making up for lost time The sun has set but I ain't through with trying I'm walking the straight and narrow keeping under the street lights chorus

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <https://damnllyrics.com/>