

The Lucky One

Winger

No sun would rise
In my silent Heaven without your love
Lord knows, I've tried
But, I keep looking into your empty eyes
Now, don't take for granted
I'll be lyin' here
When the morning comes
If there's still a chance, tell me now
Don't think I'll be waitin' around
While you treat my love
Like it's all a dime a dozen
You don't feel the pain
Baby, you're the lucky one
And every day and night
I keep wondering
Should, I just tear out these pages
Can't you see it girl, you're the lucky one?
Who have you been lyin' to?
Is it me baby or is it you?
How long would you trust?
Before your lady luck gives you up
Any truth to your promises
Washed away before the war began
If there's still a chance
Tell me now
But don't think I'll be waitin' around
While you treat my love
Like it's all a dime a dozen
You don't feel the pain
Baby, you're the lucky one
And every day and night
I keep wondering
Should, I just tear out these pages
Can't you see it girl, you're the lucky one?
You're the lucky one
Maybe it's true nothing lasts forever
So they say, so sad
Baby without your love
No sun would rise again
But girl these open arms are gettin' tired
And pretty soon, I'm gonna walk away
No you don't feel the pain
Baby, you're the lucky one
And don't think I'll be waitin' around
While you treat my love
Like it's all a dime a dozen
Can't you see it girl, you're the lucky one?

You're the lucky one, yeah
And every day and night I keep wonderin'
Should I just tear out these pages
Can't you see it girl, it's you yeah
You're the lucky one

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnllyrics.com/>