Far Away

Blackfield

Wherever I stay, there's a feeling I'm so far away
I got no hometown, I never put roots down
I bet you feel safe keeping your life in a cage
While I take my chances, but it always collapsesI really don't know what it needs to put my smile on
Turn the light on
It always seems I'm falling down
They think I'm crazy
They think I'm crazy
There's a child in me, still hiding behind the old tree
But aren't we all hiding 'til the moment we're dyingMaybe I'm free, but freedom just means that I'm lost
(means that I'm lost, means that I'm lost)
It feels like I'm driving without ever arriving
I really don't know what it needs to put my smile on
Turn the light on
It always seems I'm falling down (falling down, falling down)
They think I'm crazy
They think I'm crazyWherever I stay, there's a feeling I'm so far away
I got no hometown, I used to run so fast
