

The Last Door

Jack Bruce & Robin Trower

Before the dazzling light this eye
Long before the rushing breath of thought
Before was seen the mild mild sky
Long before the knowing came to naught
We came to search for
What was lost
Lost from conscious mind
Against the last door
Foolishness enshrined
Once knew the beauty of this place
Now no one's speaking of its loss
Time did not this memory erase
Just fear of what it all must cost
We came to search for
What was lost
Lost from conscious mind
Against the last door
Foolishness enshrined
The waves of feeling washed away
A golden age that no one knew
A tragic scene people say
And all believe in nothing true
What was lost
Lost from conscious mind
Against the last door
Foolishness enshrined
