Thanx

Lisa Marie Presley

One day, well, on one tombstone
All our names should go
We shared a life
The beauty and the ugliness
Through all we've been and with
The birth of a child
Thanx for throwing me the line
When I've lost sight of it
And you're the only reason I can exhale
And now suddenly when I find
That the outcome's just not right from what I just did
You're the only thing I can breathe through
You're heaven, my sweet friends
A few lines of poetry, it may be laughable
But thanx for laughing with me
Yes, and the next time I wrap myself around a tree
And I know that you'll be there with bells on Yeah, to pull me off
Thanx for throwing me the line
When I've lost sight of it
And you're the only reason I can exhale

And now suddenly when I find
That the outcome's just not right from what I just did
You're the only thing I can breathe through
And you can tell me a story I've heard before
I was such a mother then
And you didn't tell me where to go
Thanx for throwing me the line
When I've lost sight of it
And you're the only reason I can exhale
And now suddenly when I find
That the outcome's just not right from what I just did
You're the only thing I can breathe through
Thanx for throwing me the line
When I've lost sight of it
Ho, you're the only reason I can exhale
And now suddenly when I find
That the outcome's just not right from what I just did

You're the only thing I can breathe through
Ho, you're the only reason I can exhale
