Search the Horizon

The Stephan Michael Band

Believing I must make a change, letting go of the past as I get on with the show, I find my self feeling alone at times, as I fight not to let the world change who I am

And I Search The Horizon for things that never come , wanting peace in a world that doesn't care, and I look in the mirror and see what we've become and the face looking back at us

On the open seas I stand alone, no one there to catch me when I fall, Time is not on my side, the only moment guaranteed is the one that we have now

What you think and what you see, the world is in trouble no relief, peace of mind is hard to find in a world so divided at war
