A Kiss from the Sky

Taproot

Beyond the back row off the beat and path step into a field of dying blades of grass so thick I have to use my hands and slowly sinking in quicksand I'll pull away till I can see again Staring down with a kiss from the sky unsure what feeds the flame i know a secret way
unclear the reason why I'll go in hopes to find between the field now and the river bed inching closer to the waters edge 3 rocks separate the flow each stride I chip away the stone every breath I pray a miracle raining down like a kiss from the sky unsure what feeds the flame
setting foot on solid ground again at the hillside's steepest climb nearing the top I seem among the clouds staring down like a kiss from the sky unsure what feeds the flame
