The Tempest

Mike Oldfield

Saw you the other day looking so undermined Acting like it wouldn't happen Making sense of anything that you could findBecause it's just about to happen and you'll be there You must've known the storm was coming When the clouds appeared May as well let the rain come down And join the circus of people While you're thereSomething is changing, bruising and taking And I'm trying to find out what it is When I fix her, she's breaking, reason keeps escaping me We're protecting and burning like a cystI know that I can help you, I just don't fucking want to And the feeling is stronger by the day Say that I'm selfish but I know you need me Said I'm just so sick of the chaseWhile you are letting your guard down I will be letting myself go While you keep running your ship aground I will be setting myself alightToo late you dropped the drawbridge, you let the vampires in You caused the shit to happen and now you want out Too late you dropped the drawbridge, you let the vampires in I hope you know now that it's nobody's fault but yoursWhile you are letting your guard down I will be letting myself go While you keep running your ship aground I will be setting myself alight
